Program Description

Since theater is a performance art, classes in the Theatre Arts Department are production oriented. The department produces a season of 5-6 shows each year, including serious and comedic dramas, musical theater, theater for young audiences, and an original one-act festival. A full range of courses are offered allowing the student to gain a broad-based background in all aspects of theater along with intensive training for the actor, director, designer and playwright.

Course offerings are designed to serve three student groupings: theater students planning to transfer to a four-year institution; students seeking fulfillment of general education requirements for a degree program; and students wishing to broaden their vision as artists in an intensive acting training program to help prepare for a career as an actor in theater, film and television.

Distinctive Features

Departmental productions are integrated into all course studies and are used as practical examples of the theory and practice covered in each course. The program is performance oriented with many opportunities for students and community members to participate in public performances of shows. Our theater for young audiences program, for example, generally performs each year before over 7,000 audience members. Course offerings fall into three groupings: introduction to theater history/theory, dramatic literature, and practical courses in acting, directing, playwrighting and technical theater.

Associate in Arts in Theatre Arts for Transfer

Theatre has been a powerful medium of human expression and exploration for thousands of years, offering its community a deeper understanding of itself, both as a collective and as individuals, through a synthesis of entertainment and instruction. A background in the Theatre Arts offers students the opportunity to develop a powerful insight into the nature of human relationships and interpersonal dynamics.
