Academic regalia and the academic mace

The origins of the academic cap and gown can be traced back to the first European colleges and universities during the Middle Ages.

At the time, most of the schools were for theologians, so students and teachers adopted the standard clerical dress of the time:

- The cappa—a plain, ankle-length cassock
- A biretta—a stiff, square cap with a tuft on top

The cappa was a simple gown and least costly, thus it was considered most appropriate for clerical students. Initially, the gown colors indicated ecclesiastical rank or a particular order, with scholars and lesser clergy wearing black.

By the mid-1500s, individual colleges and universities adopted gowns with distinctive shapes and colors. As for the biretta, its shape changed to a "mortar board" in the 1800s as institutions sought to standardize the shape and size of the upper part of the headpiece.

The "mortar board" style itself can be traced to the Middle Ages as the guild of masons would wear hats representing an aspect of their trade—in this case, the boards on which they mixed mortar—to festive ceremonies.

The tuft on the biretta evolved into the modern tassel.

Academic regalia and the academic mace

The colorful academic hoods worn by faculty, trustees and administrators at today's ceremony, are merely a modern variation of a tippet—a long, black scarf worn over a robe hundreds of years ago to keep a person warm. The hood, now elongated to hang down the back, reflects the academic background of the wearer.

Tassels and hoods worn by faculty and officials contain colors reflecting the academic background of each person:

Arts, letters, humanities.....	white
Business.....	drab
Economics.....	copper
Education.....	light blue
Engineering.....	orange
Fine arts.....	brown
Library science.....	lemon
Music.....	pink
Nursing.....	apricot
Philosophy.....	dark blue
Physical education.....	sage green
Science.....	golden yellow
Social work.....	citron

The master's hood is pointed; the doctor's hood is bell shaped. The border of the hood indicates the scholar's department; the lining emblazons his or her school colors. Borders are made of satin for masters and velvet for doctors.

Gowns of masters and doctors also have differences. The master's gown has pointed sleeves slit at the elbows. A doctor's gown has wide lapels of velvet, either black or the color of the scholar's specialization. The sleeves are full and bell-shaped. There are three velvet chevrons, either black or colored like the lapels.

The academic scepter, or mace, was one of the earliest distinctive signs of medieval university officials. The mace was originally a wooden staff carried by royal messengers. In the 15th century it became symbolic of academic dignity. By the 16th century, the mace, a symbol of authority, was embraced as a ceremonial object by colleges and universities.

Students today are also wearing either academic stoles and/or academic cords signifying their program of study or their groups of affiliation while at ACV. These signs of recognition and acknowledgment communicate to the campus their relationship and outstanding success.

Degrees and honors designations

The degrees and honors designation are based on the student's performance prior to the completion of the most recent term. The final degrees in honored designation will be determined once all requirements are met. Students wearing a gold tassel are recognized as students with designation. Students names in bold type indicate that they have a permanent membership in Alpha Gamma Sigma California Community College Honor Scholarship Society.
